A New Use of Importance Sampling to Reduce Computational Burden in Simulation Estimation Daniel A. Ackerberg, 2001 Method of Simulated Moments MSM estimators introduced by McFadden 1989 and Pakes and Pollard 1989 are of great use to applied economists They are relatively easy to use even for estimating very complicated economic models One simply needs to generate simulated data according to the model and choose parameters that make moments of this simulated data as close as possible to moments of the true data This paper uses importance sampling techniques to address a significant computational caveat regarding these MSM estimators that often one s economic model is hard to solve Examples include complicated equilibrium models and dynamic programming problems We show that importance sampling can reduce the number of times a particular model needs to be solved in an estimation procedure significantly decreasing computational burden
