authors then delineate the clinical perspective and the way in which their approach deals with today's diverse family forms. The authors show how their theory is practiced by presenting ideas and then referencing sections in the corresponding video.

Stepfamilies in Therapy Don Martin, Maggie Martin, Pat Jeffers, 1992-11-03 This book provides comprehensive information and guidance for addressing the special needs and problems of stepfamilies in therapy. It examines the complex issues facing stepfamilies including grief over divorce, negative stereotypes of stepfamilies, child custody and visitation disputes, unrealistic expectations of family life, and confusing relationships with extended family, and offers therapeutic approaches, strategies, and interventions for effective assessment and treatment.

An Introduction to Family Social Work Donald Collins, Cathleen Jordan, Heather Coleman, 1999 This text provides beginning students with the knowledge and skills necessary for family social work. Not a family therapy text, it is intended for students who will work with families but who will not necessarily undertake advanced training in family therapy. Chapters 1 and 2 present a philosophical perspective and provide an understanding of family functions. Chapters 3 and 4 treat family assessment, and Chapters 5 through 10 lead students through the actual process of working with families. The concluding chapters discuss gender and culturally sensitive practice and cover special situations that family social workers may encounter in working with children and adults.

Transforming Your Marriage Judy Schwab, Walter B. Schwab, 1996 The Family and Family Therapy in International Perspective Uwe Peter Gielen, Anna Laura Comunian, 1997 Essentials of Chemical Dependency Counseling Gary Lawson, Ann W. Lawson, P.

Clayton Rivers, 2001 The newly revised edition of this well-known evidence-based text presents new ways of thinking about and addressing problems related to chemical dependency treatment and prevention. Essentials of Chemical Dependency Counseling Third Edition explores the full range of issues that face today's counselors and counselors in training. Also included are practical suggestions for career success. The revised edition now offers two new chapters on counseling those who are reluctant to recover and harm reduction, up-to-date material on legal and ethical issues, family counseling, and diversity, a new assessment instrument for client characterization, coverage of Technical Assistance Publication 21, the new national standards for training chemical dependency counselors, a new appendix containing useful chemical dependency-related Web sites, and updated frequently asked questions and answers about clients and the counseling field. The use of chapter objectives and discussion questions and the availability of an instructor's manual make this an ideal textbook for use in chemical dependency counseling courses in programs of psychology, family therapy, and social work.

Troubled Relationships Elam W. Nunnally, Catherine Chilman, Fred Cox, 1988-08 From economic hardship to emotional stress, from family violence to divorce, the family unit today may face nearly unbearable pressures that threaten its survival as a social institution. How pervasive is stress within the family unit? Can disturbed relationships be re-adjusted, and if so, what treatment modes are available? Answering these and other significant questions associated with family dysfunction, the contributors to this volume explore such issues as the need for developing appropriate intervention theory for children of divorce the Brief Family Therapy model for troubled parent child relationships problems facing families when children are placed in foster or residential care facilities and strategic rapid intervention for wife battering Legal policies are also discussed emphasizing the need for social scientists to assist courts in making custody determinations and the need for developing treatment plans for juvenile delinquents batterers and child abusers
