

The Role of Fate in Romeo and Juliet

Most of Shakespeare's plays are conceived around a foundation in either tragedy or comedy, this polarity of themes allowing him to experiment with the full range of human emotions. Typically, an integral part of a Shakespearean tragedy is love, which is frustrated by a breakdown in order, or the character of the hero, due to some human limitation. The play Romeo and Juliet has all these typical characteristics. However, the resultant conclusion of events for the characters in this tragedy is adversely affected by the hands of fate, and not solely the product of human limitations.

Fate in fact has a decisive role in the events of the play; it is a series of rapid coincidental events, which lead to the final tragedy. Romeo and Juliet are described during the prologue as "a pair of star-crossed lovers" The play Romeo and Juliet was one of the most famous love tragedies ever written. This love story unfortunately had a fatal ending. Many people argue over why the lovers had died, was it over Free Will or Fate? The death of Romeo and Juliet was partially because of free will. The fact that Romeo and Juliet got married knowing that there was a bitter feud between their families, the Montague and Capulet's.

This feud brought on many problems, such as the murder of Tybalt by Romeo. Juliet knew that this might be a problem for Her and Romeo. Juliet had said: "What's in a name"? Which explains her ill fate of being a Capulet and Romeo being a Montague. When Romeo tells his servant " Ay, mine own fortune in my misery". Is there anything in this world which can occur anytime, anywhere, anyway to anyone? unexpectedly? Yes, it is the change of fate. Everyone in their life have their own fate and everyone in their life experience fate in different manner,

Some could have positive result and some could have negative result. As Napoleon Bonaparte said "there is no such thing as an accidents; it is fate misnamed. " This refers to the novel, and a play of Romeo and Juliet written by William Shakespeare, the two young lover's life began and ended with misfortune. The most remembered lovers of all times became the helpless victims of fate. Tybalt's aggressive nature, Friar Lawrence failed attempted to send an important message to Romeo, and Romeo's impulsive decision to commit suicide let to the unfortunate and tragic end of the story.

In the novel Tybalt's aggressive nature influenced his own death, which led to the tragic end of the two young lovers, Romeo and Juliet. At the feast when Tybalt sees Romeo he is determined to kill him, as Romeo sees Juliet and falls in love with her. Scholars are divided on the role of fate in the play. No consensus exists on whether the characters are truly fated to die together or whether the events take place by a series of unlucky chances. Arguments in favour of fate often refer to the description of the lovers as "star-cross'd".

The plays have a characteristic structure in which the thematic statement is initiated in the early scenes and then repeated with variations throughout. In Hamlet, for instance, the sententia "all that lives must die" passing through nature to eternity is exemplified and concretized in scene after scene. Donker demonstrates that Shakespeare was a product of his schooling in Tudor England in which simple proverbial material was considered to be the substance of moral philosophy, the subject to be developed, varied, and amplified in school exercises. He was also following the dictate of Horace in Ars poetica that moral philosophy was the proper subject of the poet, that the adage was to be the theme of fiction, to be modulated in a wide range of registers and tones throughout the work. Shakespeare was using the adage as central to the process of invention. Previous scholars have analyzed the sententia as a hallmark of style in Shakespeare's plays but not as the controlling theme. This is a well-explicated argument that will be of interest and value to Shakespearean scholars and
