How Communication Affects

- Communication can shorten the distance between the communicators and the information itself.
Because information is open.

• Information can be communicated

When the communicators have the same background and the same language they can communicate more efficiently.
When the communicators have different backgrounds and languages they can communicate more inefficiently.

When there is more information available the communicators can communicate more efficiently.

When there is less information available the communicators can communicate more inefficiently.

• Communication

- There are two main types of communication

• One is written communication

- Written communication can communicate information more precisely, but it is more expensive and less flexible.
Because it is more expensive and less flexible it is more likely to be used in business and government.

- The other type of written communication is electronic communication.
Because it is less expensive and more flexible.

• Another type of communication

- Oral communication

- Oral communication can communicate information more precisely than written communication.
Because it is more flexible.

- Oral communication can communicate information more precisely than written communication.
Because it is more flexible.

Because it is more flexible.
