

Information Reports

What are information reports and why do we write them?

Information reports are written to classify and describe factual information about a certain topic or theme. We can write information reports on animals, cities, history, sport, people, companies and many more topics.

What structure is needed in an information report?

An information report includes:

- An opening general statement or general classification, which classifies the topic and/or theme and includes further technical information about the subject of the report.
- Descriptive information about various aspects of the topic or theme, which is organised into paragraphs, with or without subheadings and sections.

What are the main language features?

- Language of generalisation, for example: A dinosaur is...
- Language of description, for example: The Great Barrier Reef has beautiful, colourful coral formations.
- Language of comparison/contrast, for example: Trains are similar to trains.

What other features need to be included?

Text Cohesion

For a text to 'flow' there needs to be links and relationships established within the text. This is done through linking back to something that has already been mentioned. This

- Language of description, for example: The Great Barrier Reef has beautiful, colourful coral formations.
- Language of comparison/contrast, for example: Trains are similar to trains.

What other features need to be included?

Text Cohesion

For a text to 'flow' there needs to be links and relationships established within the text. This is done through linking back to something that has already been mentioned. This can be done through linking devices that connect previous and following sentences. For example: However, Then, because, Also, First, After, Next, Finally, Then, Again, Also, Again.

Textual/Text Agreement

For example: The Great Barrier Reef is located off the eastern coast of Australia.

Textured language

This language includes words and vocabulary that is specific to the particular topic or theme that is being written. When writing about dinosaurs the writer may want to refer to specific terminology for example vertebrates, extinct, reptiles.

Visual/Pictorial Text

For example: First come up to the surface of the ocean to breathe.

What skills are used and developed when writing information reports?
Speaking, listening, reading, writing, processing and interacting.
