Redressing Institutional Abuse Of Children:

Redressing Institutional Abuse of Children K. Daly, 2014-10-27 Winner of the Christine M Alder Book Prize in 2015 from the Australian and New Zealand Society of Criminology Historical abuse of children is a worldwide phenomenon This book assesses the enablers of abuse and the reasons it took so long for officials to respond It analyzes redress for institutional abuse in two countries Canada and Australia using first hand accounts of survivors experiences Child Sexual Abuse Reported by Adult Survivors Sinéad Ring, Kate Gleeson, Kim Stevenson, 2022-04-28 Child Sexual Abuse Reported by Adult Survivors is a wide ranging and timely critical history and analysis of legal responses to historical or non recent child sexual abuse NRCSA in England and Wales Ireland and Australia each of which represents an evolving and progressive approach to this important and complex issue The book examines the emergence of NRCSA as a distinctive social political and legal phenomenon in each country and explores the legal responses developed to address its unprecedented challenges Courts and parliaments in each country have reformed existing doctrine and practice and have created new ways of holding state and private actors accountable and new ways of addressing survivors injuries Criminal law tort law public inquiries and state reparations have all been to the forefront of these new legal responses which have transformed law s engagement with NRCSA survivors and understandings of justice itself However despite this undeniable progress the book identifies ways in which the legal responses developed in each country fail to deliver accountability and recognition to NRCSA survivors and argues that such failures betray the law s inherent ambivalence to delivering justice for these survivors Creating new insights into legal responses to this complex contemporary legal social and political problem this book will be of great interest to academic lawyers political scientists and historians as well as those working on related topics in criminology sociology social policy cultural studies and gender studies Participatory Research on Child Maltreatment with Children and Adult Survivors Maria Roth, Ravit Alfandari, Gemma Crous, Sam Frankel, 2023-10-04 The ebook edition of this title is Open Access and freely available to read online Enriching ongoing debates about participatory research in the field of child maltreatment this book highlights the advantages that participation as a human right can bring to the community of researchers and helping professionals Supporting Adult Care-Leavers Suellen Murray, 2015-12-16 Growing up in care is not just a part of childhood but can have ongoing impacts across a person s life Various inquiries have revealed accounts of abuse and neglect and a fracturing of family relationships Organised thematically to allow comparison of different initiatives this book considers the range of responses to adult care leavers in Australia Canada Ireland New Zealand and the UK Initiatives examined include public inquiries symbolic acknowledgements redress schemes specialist support services access to personal records and family reunification programs Featuring detailed case studies and examples of good practice this is an excellent international source book for practitioners and policy makers in social work and social care Institutional Abuse of Children Bill Madden, Tina Cockburn, Benjamin Madden, 2019 Institutional abuse of children Legal remedies and redress in

Australia examines the recently amended common law framework These reforms include removal of limitation periods reversal of the onus of proof extending vicarious liability to persons akin to employees requiring institutions to identify a proper defendant when necessary and permitting some earlier settlements and judgements to be revisited The unique fixed term National Redress Scheme for historic child sexual abuse in institutional settings is also examined in the context of the underlying policy to offer an alternate redress pathway which aims to be more flexible less formal faster cheaper and involving less trauma and conflict for survivors As the first detailed analysis of the new legal framework relating to compensation and redress for child sexual abuse in Australia this book makes an original contribution to knowledge and understanding of the law in this complex area which continues to develop at a rapid pace as additional legislation is enacted across Australia and as the courts begin to construe these new legislative provisions Features Analyses the new legal framework governing claims for compensation and redress arising out of sexual abuse of children in institutional settings in Australia Examines the relationship between the National Redress Scheme and civil claims Provides a practical understanding of how to work through the intersecting laws and redress systems to best advise clients

The Bloomsbury Reader in Religion and Childhood Anna Strhan, Stephen G. Parker, Susan Ridgely, 2017-01-26 From recent sex abuse scandals in the Roman Catholic Church to arguments about faith schools and religious indoctrination this volume considers the interconnection between the actual lives of children and the position of children as placeholders for the future Childhood has often been a particular site of struggle for negotiating the location of religion in public and everyday social life and children's involvement and non involvement in religion raises strong feelings because they represent the future of religious and secular communities even of society itself The Bloomsbury Reader in Religion and Childhood provides a rich resource for students and scholars of this interdisciplinary field and addresses wider questions about the distinctiveness of childhood and its religious dimensions in historical and contemporary perspective Divided into five thematic parts the volume provides classic contemporary and specially commissioned readings from a range of perspectives including the sociological anthropological historical and theological Case studies range from Augustine's description of childhood in Confessions the psychology of religion and childhood to religion in children's literature religious education and Qur'anic schools Religious traditions covered include Christianity Judaism Islam Hinduism and Buddhism in the UK and Europe USA Latin America and Africa An introduction situates each thematic part and each reading is contextualised by the editors Guidance on further reading and study questions are provided on the book's webpage

Institutional Abuse of Children: Legal Remedies and Redress in Australia, 2nd Edition B Madden; B Madden; T Cockburn, 2023-05 Institutional abuse of children Legal remedies and redress in Australia 2nd edition examines the current compensation framework and the unique National Redress Scheme for historic child sexual abuse which aims to be less formal and to involve less trauma for survivors This new edition is timely The legal framework has continued to develop at a rapid pace and additional legislation has been enacted across Australia

Features Analyses the rapidly developing legal framework governing claims for compensation and redress arising out of sexual abuse of children in institutional settings in Australia Examines the relationship between the National Redress Scheme and civil claims Provides a practical understanding of how to work through the intersecting laws and redress systems to best advise clients Related Titles Young Kenny Monahan editors Children and the law in Australia 2016 An Interactive and Principled Approach to Redressing Institutional Child Abuse, 2000 An Interactive and Principled Approach to Redressing Institutional Child Abuse, 2000 The Supreme Court Law Review, 2002 Redress Packages for Institutional Child Abuse Reg Graycar, Jane M. Wangmann, 2013 Over the last decade there have been numerous revelations about the harms suffered by children in a range of institutions in Australia In 1997 the Human Rights and Equal Opportunity Commission reported on the experiences of the Aboriginal Stolen Generations in Bringing them Home and a number of other state and federal inquiries have also documented an extensive history of institutional abuses of children in Australia Most of the inquiries recommended that the relevant victims survivors should be compensated and or provided with some form of reparation yet with limited exceptions the governments involved have refused to implement or even entertain any form of redress package In stark contrast in Canada where there has been a range of similar inquiries into institutional abuse of children there has been considerable progress in providing redress in the form of specifically designed reparations or compensation packages The redress schemes developed in Canada vary considerably Some resemble out of court settlements while others appear to provide genuinely alternative forms of dispute resolution If we understand the notion of redress or reparations as being about more than simply settling claims by means of financial compensation if redress is seen as an attempt to address the multiple needs of victim survivors of abuse then we need to identify those characteristics that distinguish successful redress mechanisms from the more traditional tort system In this paper we focus in depth on the Grandview Agreement concluded between the government of Ontario and the Grandview Survivors Support Group in 1994 This agreement gave rise to a process widely seen as one that developed and put in place an alternative process for addressing the harms perpetrated on the women and girls held in the Grandview Training School for Girls We use the Grandview Agreement and the process of adjudication developed for it as a case study by which to examine the possibilities for creative redress packages that move beyond the common law tort system's emphasis on traditional concerns such as burden of proof responsibility causation validation and witness credibility and instead focus on healing and reparation
