PSC 201 final exam 2022 with complete solution

Federalism - The government is divided between the national and state levels with national being the highest.

Checks and Balances - Each branch of government has the power to watch over the others to make sure they are doing their job correctly.

Limited Government - The government can only do certain things

1st Amendment - Freedom of religion
Freedom of peaceably assemble
Freedom of the press
Right to petition the government
Freedom of speech

4th Amendment - Protection against illegal searches and seizures
Search warrant needed to search buildings and not cars
Probable cause is needed to search a car
In order to get a search warrant to go in building; judge must be convinced a good reason to search.
The Exclusionary Rule; means that the evidence obtained improperly cannot be used.

9th Amendment - Just because a right isn't listed doesn't mean you don't have it. You probably do; we just can't list them all.

10th Amendment - Reserved powers for the state- reinforces the principle of federalism by stating that the federal government possesses only those powers delegated to it by the states or the people through the constitution.

15th Amendment - Gave black male adults the right to vote

17th Amendment - Senators elected by popular vote/elected by the people

19th Amendment - Gave women the right to vote in 1920

22nd Amendment - Limits the number of times that a person can be elected as president; A person cannot be elected more than twice. And a person who has more than 2 years of a term to which someone else was elected cannot be elected more than once. ( only can serve for 2 terms or ten years

Psc English Question 201:

The Constitutional and Legal Development of the Chinese Presidency Zhang Runhua, 2014-11-05 This book investigates the legal and political evolution of Chinese presidency from the period of its forerunner in the 1930s its establishment in 1954 to its abolition in 1975 and its restoration in 1982 and discovers that the presidency has evolved from a traditional Chinese title into a political position and then a state institution that has the constitutional appearance of a Western style semi presidency However politically it has functioned in a Stalinist party state with Chinese characteristics whose candidates have been produced according to the CCP's step by step succession rules designated by the party leaders Real political decision making power has not only been limited by these succession rules but also by the president's role and status within the CCP's collective supreme body The author weaves the themes of Chinese politics and law together and explores not only the political implications of those constitutional provisions and amendments regarding this office but also the constitutional significance of the CCP's major political practices such as Mao Zedong's power of last say his idea of two fronts his controversial abolition of the chairmanship Deng Xiaoping's idea of the nucleus of leadership and diplomacy of the head of state by Chinese presidents thus illuminating how law has been made in those unpredictable political environments and how politics has been defined by law The author concludes that the office of president is the key to understanding how power in China derives first from the CCP second from the military and third from the government loosely prescribed by laws Even more important the millennia old Confucian concept of the charismatic leader is alive and well While all eyes are on the new incumbent his predecessors have loomed large and continue to exert significant influence on him Underlining decades of constitutional evolution and shifting political dynamics have been the changing foreign influences and local demands on China With so many variables at play the office of the president will certainly continue to evolve
