Relationship between accounts

Conclusion

The balance of payments comprises of the current account and the capital and financial account, which represents all external payments for an economy and indicates the relationship between Australia and the global economy. Whilst historically Australia has experienced a current account deficit (CAD), there has recently been a shift to a current account surplus (CAS) since 2020, which can be attributed to the improving goods and services balance (BOGS) and net primary income (NPI), which are components of the current account, along with the net secondary income (NSI). The current account shows the receipts and payments for non-reversible trade in goods and services, transfer payments and income flows between Australia and the rest of the world in a certain time. The capital and financial account (KAF) records the borrowing, lending, sales and purchases of assets between Australia and the rest of the world. Both cyclical factors, those which occur in phases/cycles and return to previous stage after certain period and structural factors, long lasting/permanent, impact the state of the balance of payments.

Current account

The changes in the net primary and secondary income and the goods and services balance is the determinant in the fluctuations of the current account. The current account balance is found by adding the NPI and NSI. The historical CAD's were caused by Australia's low levels of national savings, this is because excessive expenditure will force a lot of businesses to seek funds overseas. At the same time, when
