Portuguese Trade In Asia Under The Habsburgs 1580 1640:

Portuguese Trade in Asia Under the Habsburgs, 1580-1640 James C. Boyajian, 1993 While Spanish traders of the sixteenth and seventeenth centuries were mining the riches of the New World the Portuguese continued to reap the lucrative Asian trade in spices and luxury items. Historians have long considered the Portuguese trade the exclusive enterprise of the kings of Portugal and a few privileged aristocrats with only minimal participation by private merchants. But in fact argues James C. Boyajian, actual capital investments by private Portuguese merchants were roughly ten times those of the Portuguese crown and even exceeded those of the far larger Dutch East India Company. In Portuguese Trade in Asia under the Habsburgs Boyajian reassesses the consequences of Portugal's flourishing private trade with Asia including increased tensions between the growing urban merchant class and the still dominant landed aristocracy. He also shows how Portuguese Asian trade formed part of a global trading network that linked not only Europe and Asia but also for the first time Asia, West Africa, Brazil and Spanish America. And he argues that contrary to previous scholarly opinion nearly half of the Portuguese Asian trade was controlled by New Christians descendants of Iberian Jews forcibly converted to Christianity in the 1490s. Ironically, Boyajian concludes the vast wealth that flowed into Portugal between 1580 and 1640 did little to enrich the country. Landed aristocrats who controlled the church, the Inquisition and the royal administration used their position to deny merchants the social standing that would encourage productive investments in Portugal. And by the seventeenth century the Portuguese Asian trade itself was doomed the result. Boyajian argues not of the much heralded Dutch economic successes but of Dutch naval blockades that effectively severed Portugal's trading lifeline with Asia.

The Portuguese Empire in Asia, 1500-1700 Sanjay Subrahmanyam, 2012-03-07. Portuguese, Dutch and Chinese in Maritime Asia, c.1585 - 1800 George Bryan Souza, 2024-10-28. This collection of 13 essays deals with a range of topics concerning

Portuguese, Dutch and Chinese merchants, commodities and commerce in maritime Asia in the early modern period from c. 1585-1800. They are based on exhaustive research and careful analysis of diverse sets of archival materials found around the globe. Written by a leading authority on global maritime economic history and the history of European Expansion, each individual essay addresses a topic of fundamental importance to those interested in knowing more about what merchants did with which resources and under what conditions and how they did it. What were the commodities that were incorporated into local, regional, intra-regional and global economies and what was the role and function of early modern maritime trade and commerce in economic development in general and especially in Asia in the early modern era from c. 1585-1800. A number of them in particular relate the individual or collective merchant experience to specific European Portuguese and Dutch imperial projects and their contestation amongst themselves and their indigenous neighbours over portions of the period. Collectively they form an exposition of a utilitarian view of human activity under a wide ranging different set of circumstances and conditions but with similar patterns of behaviors and responses that are largely independent from ethnic, racial or religious stereotyping. The work therefore should raise new issues and avenues of research concerning these agents and objects in European Expansion Asian and Global History Portuguese Enterprise in the East Teddy Y.H.

SIM,2011-08-25 Since 2000 there have been fewer studies released about the formal aspects of the operation of colonial powers such as Portugal in the East during the Early Modern period. Prior the fall of Communism in the last decade of the twentieth century gave a boost to liberal ideology while research into topics related to autocracy or state apparatus have become unfashionable. The Portuguese role in the East is usually overlooked being less high profile than that of the Dutch or British. Drawing on unpublished materials from the Overseas Historical Archive and other libraries in Portugal this book considers Portuguese leadership and organization at home where it pertained to the governance of the eastern colonies as well as the formal and soft instruments of state applied on the ground in these colonies in first half of the eighteenth century.

On the Economic Encounter Between Asia and Europe, 1500-1800 Om Prakash,2023-05-31 The history of the economic contacts between Asia and Europe dates back to at least the early years of the Common Era. But it was only after the overcoming of the transport technology barrier to the growth of trade between the two continents following the discovery by the Portuguese at the end of the 15th century of the all water route to the East Indies that these contacts became regular and quantitatively significant. The Portuguese were joined at the beginning of the 17th century by the Dutch and the English East India companies. The Europeans operated in the Indian Ocean alongside the Indian and other Asian merchants with no special privileges being available to them. The present collection of essays by Professor Om Prakash first deals with the Indian merchants participation in the Indian Ocean trade on the eve of the Europeans arrival in the Ocean. The subsequent essays include a discussion of the Portuguese involvement in the Euro Asian and the Indian Ocean trade. Attention is then turned to the trading activities of the Dutch and the English East India companies. The volume also contains essays on textile manufacturing and trade as well as on coinage and wages in India. The concluding essay deals with trade and politics in the province of Bengal. The Portuguese Revolution (1640-1668) David Lewis Tengwall,2010 A study that examines the major events that led to the Spanish control of Portugal in 1580 and the major causes of the revolt in 1640. The Power of Cities ,2019-09-16 The Power of Cities focuses on Iberian cities during the lengthy transition from the late Roman to the early modern period with a particular interest in the change from early Christianity to the Islamic period and on to the restoration of Christianity. Drawing on case studies from cities such as Toledo, Cordoba and Seville it collects for the first time recent research in urban studies using both archaeological and historical sources. Against the common portrayal of these cities characterized by discontinuities due to decadence decline and invasions it is instead continuity that is a gradual transformation which emerges as the defining characteristic The volume argues for a fresh interpretation of Iberian cities across this period seen as a continuum of structural changes across time and proposes a new history of the Iberian Peninsula written from the perspective of the cities Contributors are Javier Arce Mar a Asenjo Gonz lez Antonio Irigoyen L pez Alberto Le n Mu oz Matthias Maser Sabine Panzram Gisela Ripoll Torsten dos Santos Arnold Isabel Toral Niehoff Fernando Vald s Fern ndez and Klaus Weber Portuguese Voyages to Asia and Japan in the Renaissance Period Peter Milward,1994
