Road traffic accident (RTA) injuries and mortalities are some side effects of using automobile vehicles and Ghana is not deprived of them. This study enlightens some effects of road traffic accident mortalities on the Ghanaian economy and investigates its yearly trend, age range distribution and also reveals its influence on economic activities. 832 secondary data obtained on individuals who died through RTA from the Autopsy day book of Pathology Unit, KATH was studied. 15% (126) of the victims were children below 15 years (≤14), 9% (78) are aged over 64 (≥65) years. The total RTA deaths among these two economic dependent age range (≤14 + ≥65) was 25% (204) and that of the economic active population (15-64) is 75%(628). Yearly trend plot shows fluctuations as the working group lies above the dependent population. There is 3:1 death ratio between the economic independent and dependent population respectively, contributing to high dependency ratio in Ghana. Support from the working group towards their families, society and any other dependent population decreases. Economic growth, development and GDP are negatively affected as tax revenue and productivity is comparatively decreasing. The Motor Transport and Traffic Unit should increase its effort to ensure discipline on roads.

Key words: Road traffic accident, active/working population, dependency ratio, mortality, economy.

INTRODUCTION

Collision of vehicles against each other and other objects on motorways and roads has been one of the leading causes of deaths and loss of resources. These various forms of road traffic accidents affect individuals and societies all over the world (Coleman, 2014). Some of the indicators contributing to most RTAs in Ghana include indiscipline behaviors of road users (drivers on phone, pedestrians crossing road at wrong places), poor road network (Amedorhe and Nsoh, 2016), driving under the influence of alcohol and bad vehicle conditions (Coleman, 2014). Having unlicensed and minors driving on our roads, drivers driving long distance without rest and chronically-ill (visually impaired) drivers are factors contributing to road traffic accidents. Over 65% of

Urban Congestion ,1995 This paper provides an account of preliminary work on urban traffic congestion that forms part of the Bureau of Transport and Communications Economics project on Urban Transport Externalities The project is concerned with a range of external impacts of urban transport Congestion is just one of these impacts but because it is so intimately related to the traffic patterns which give rise to the others it has been made the focus of the initial work The project is concerned with impacts in Melbourne Sydney Brisbane Adelaide and Perth However mainly for reasons of immediate data availability Melbourne is the subject of this paper It is anticipated that the approach used here will be applied to the other cities as data become available Urban travel behaviour is very complex Analysts have tried to capture its main features in models that provide estimates of the levels and patterns of traffic on the urban road network While the models are complex they are still radical simplifications of real urban systems and their treatment of some aspects of travel behaviour can only be described as rudimentary Nevertheless they consistute the state of the art in quantitative urban transport analysis and they provide a valuable framework for thinking about urban policy issues The paper provides an overview of the general features of urban transport models together with estimates of the level and distribution of delay due to congestion on the urban road network and of the level of optimal congestion tolls Economics David A.
