basis on which to clarify proposals for enhancing the effectiveness of EU efforts to prevent violent conflict. The paper's objectives are to Consider the link between post war demilitarisation and reintegration of ex combatants refugees and internally displaced persons IDPs and the risks of violent conflict within the Horn region Present an initial analysis of EU policy engagement in support of processes of post conflict demilitarisation and reintegration in the Horn region Assess the impact of EU policies and engagement on the risks of violent conflict during demilitarisation and reintegration processes and the extent to which incoherent policies are exacerbating actual or potential conflicts Consider the potential role of the European Community EC9 and EU member states MSs in supporting demilitarisation and reintegration processes in such a way that they contribute to the prevention and resolution of violent conflict in the region Adapted from Publisher's Abstract

Toolkit ,2004     Food Security: Sustainability and Accessibility Sumit Chakravarty, Arun Jyoti, Gopal Shukla, 2024-01-17 Food security satisfies people's dietary needs by ensuring physical social and economic access to sufficient safe and nutritious food. Nowadays food security is of prime importance because not only does it overcomes hunger poverty and malnutrition but it also determines the national security and political and economic sovereignty of states. However according to the FAO report 2021 2 37 billion people nearly one in three people in the world did not have adequate food availability in 2020. The green revolution created an era of extraordinary food production worldwide but agriculture oriented developing countries face adverse impacts such as loss of ecosystem quality and biodiversity and environmental degradation. Besides several challenges such as population growth pollution natural resource depletion agricultural land conversions and climate change are further developing concerns in achieving food security     Official Records ,2006
