Retreat Of I Corps 1914 Battleground:

Retreat of I Corps 1914 Jerry Murland,2014 On 23 August 1914 it was only the two divisions of General Smith Dorrien's II Corps that were directly engaged with the German First Army along the line of the Mons Conde Canal. As the British Expeditionary Force withdrew from Mons and bivouacked around Bavay on 25 August Sir John French and his GHQ advisors unsure of the condition of the routes through the Forêt de Mormal ordered the British Expeditionary Force to continue their retirement the next day and to avoid the 35 square miles of forest roads. Consequently II Corps used the roads to the west of the Forêt de Mormal and Sir Douglas Haig's I Corps those to the east with the intention that the four divisions should meet again at Le Cateau. It was an intention that was ambushed by circumstance as I Corps encountered units of the German 7th Division at Landrecies on 25-26 August. Unsure of the weight of the German attack at Landrecies Douglas Haig hurriedly left for Grand Fayt and ordered his two divisions to immediately begin their retirement along a route that would take them west of Le Cateau. It was this decision that kept the by now five divisions of the BEF apart until 1 September and is the subject of this book. I Corps was now coming under attack from the German Second Army and the resulting rearguard actions that Haig's men were involved in are covered in this volume. Landrecies, 4 Guards Brigade, Grand Fayt, 2 Connaught Rangers, Maroilles, 1 Royal Berkshires, Etreux, 2 Royal Munster Fusiliers, Cerizy, 5 Cavalry Brigade, Villers-Cotterets, 4 Guards Brigade. The account concludes on the Marne.

The Defence of St Valery-en-Caux 1940 Jerry Murland, 2024-06-30 Supported by eleven maps and over 150 photographs this is the story of Scottish Troops fighting for survival in Normandy. The story of the 51st Highland Division during 1939 and 1940 is a short and largely tragic one and although it firmly burnt itself into the minds of Scotsmen it has never been granted the recognition it deserves. Even in Scotland it is often forgotten that the men and attached troops of the 51st Division were fighting for survival in Normandy for some ten days after the evacuation from Dunkerque had been completed. Most present day accounts of the Second World War in 1939-40 deal with the Phoney War and the evacuation from Dunkerque but few mention the rearguard action at St Valery-en-Caux other than a giving it a passing mention. Nevertheless the action of the 51st Division against the might of German forces won the admiration of General Erwin Rommel and Charles De Gaulle who fought against and alongside them. One of the enduring beliefs is that Churchill deliberately sacrificed the 51st Division in an attempt to keep France in the war this apart from being palpably incorrect fails miserably to address the intricacy of the circumstances that overtook the 51st Division after they returned from the Saar. In a situation where units were repeatedly changing affiliation communication between the French Supreme Command and British forces suffered language difficulties and the inclination to blame each other for the debacle that inevitably ensued. Nevertheless for all the criticism that is thrown at the French Army it is clear that a number of French units fought hard and with great courage the main fault with the French command lying with poor leadership and lack of tactical planning. As far as the Highlanders were concerned it was bad luck that their term of duty on the Saar coincided with the beginning of Fall Rot.

The speed and extent of the German advance from Abbeville took their own High Command and the French by surprise and it was with little wonder that Allied military thinking failed to keep up with actions on the battlefield The theory that Churchill sacrificed the division to keep the French in the war owes a great deal to the Scottish need to attribute all the misery of the world to one scoundrel a trait that exists to this day Supported by eleven maps and over 150 photographs the book traces the history of the 51st Division from its inception until its final surrender at St Valery en Caux and deals with the fighting on the Saar and the often ragged skirmishing though Normandy The book also touches on the actions of the 1st armored Division and the Battle of Abbeville There are three walks and a car tour included in this volume which allows the battlefield visitor to base themselves firstly in Abbeville and secondly further into Normandy

The Battle of the Lys, 1918

Chris Baker,2018-04-30 The second of two Battleground Europe titles covering this highly significant battle of spring 1918 The German offensive in Flanders in April 1918 came close to catastrophe for the British Armies but ultimately ended in strategic defeat for the Kaisers men Following close on the heels of the devastating Operation Michael attack in March which had been aimed against the British front on the Somme and Arras this offensive Operation Georgette was aimed at strangling the vital railways and roads that supplied the British at Ypres and threatening the vital logistics links with the Channel Ports Having assembled an overwhelming numerical advantage the Germans attacked in thick fog on 9 April 1918 By days end the Germans had succeeded in gaining a crossing of the River Lys and were well on their way to the railway junctions at Hazebrouck Next day they extended the attacked front northwards and advanced to the very gates of Ypres forcing a British retirement from the bloodily won advances during the Third Battle of Ypres Messines Ridge captured so spectacularly by the British in June 1917 was soon in German hands and fighting inched towards Mont Kemmel which dominated the Ypres front Once this fell the way was open for the capture of the main supply roads into Ypres To find sufficient reserves to counter the German attack the British took the heart breaking decision to abandon the ground won so dearly in the Passchendaele offensive in the summer and autumn of 1917 Gradually fresher British and French reserves arrived and held their ground With disappointing results mounting casualties and a diminishing return for their efforts the Germans paused to regroup Late in the month they unleashed a rapid unstoppable attack that captured Kemmel from the French forces that had been rushed north to reinforce the threatened line and which had been holding the summit one of the finest military feats of the Great War Behind the scenes however the Germans were already calling off a continuation of the offensive and so by a seeming miracle the bastion that was Ypres remained in British hands What the British call The Battle of the Lys 1918 is a fascinating yet curiously neglected period of military history Chris Baker examines this major battle from the strategic down to the platoon level highlighting the key events characters and acts of enormous bravery on both sides both in historical narrative and in a series of tours of the area This volume concentrates on the northern half of the battlefield nearly all of the actions described in this volume took place in Belgium

The Battle of the Lys, 1918: South

Chris Baker,2018-04-30 The German offensive in Flanders in April 1918 came close to catastrophe for the British Armies but ultimately ended in strategic defeat for the Kaisers men. Following closely on the heels of the devastating Operation Michael attack in March on the Somme and around Arras named as Operation Georgette the offensive was aimed at strangling the vital railways and roads that supplied the British at Ypres. Having assembled an overwhelming numerical advantage the Germans attacked in thick fog on 9 April 1918. They faced tired British formations that had just been relieved from the earlier battle and which were receiving replacements mainly in the form of 18 year old conscripts. By the days end the Germans had succeeded in gaining a crossing of the River Lys and were well on their way to the vital railway junctions at Hazebrouck. Several British divisions were deployed to stop the advance only to be effectively destroyed in the attempt over the next few days. Gradually fresher British, Australian and French reserves arrived and held their ground. With disappointing results mounting casualties and a diminishing return for their efforts the Germans abandoned the offensive and turned their attention further south. What the British call The Battle of the Lys 1918 is a fascinating yet curiously neglected period of military history. Chris Baker examines this major battle from the strategic down to the platoon level highlighting the key events, characters and acts of enormous bravery on both sides both in a historical narrative and in a series of tours of the area. This volume one of two on the battle concentrates on the southern half of the battlefield.

Battle for the Escaut, 1940 Jerry Murland, 2016-11-30

On 10 May 1940 the British Expeditionary Force BEF under the command of Lord Gort moved forward from the Franco Belgian border and took up positions along a 20 mile sector off the River Dyle to await the arrival of the German Army Group B. Their expected stay was considerably shorter than planned as the German Army Group A pushed its way through the Ardennes and crossed the Meuse at Sedan scattering the French before them. Little did the men of the BEF realise that the orders to retire would result in their evacuation from Dunkirk and other channel ports. The line of the River Escaut was seen as the last real opportunity for the Allied armies to halt the advancing German Army but the jigsaw of defence was tenuous and the allied hold on the river was undone by the weight of opposing German forces and the speed of the armoured Blitzkrieg thrust further south. As far as the BEF were concerned the Battle for the Escaut took place on a 30 mile sector from Oudenaarde to Blharies and involved units in a sometimes desperate defence during which two Victoria Crosses were awarded. This book takes the battlefield tourist from Oudenaarde to Hollain in a series of tours that retrace the footsteps of the BEF. With the help of local historians the author has pinpointed crucial actions and answered some of the myriad questions associated with this important phase of the France and Flanders campaign of 1940.
