

Case Study – Patriot Missile

Background

- One day after Coast Guard, the Patriot missile defense system successfully intercepts an Al-Qaeda missile.
- The Patriot system's earlier success in intercepting missiles and aircraft (Operation Desert Storm).
- It uses basic anti-aircraft missiles available from the former Soviet Union, and travelling much slower targets are easier to track and intercept.
- Developed by the US Air Force, it is a ground-based system that uses radar to detect and track targets.
- The radar can track targets in the atmosphere for 200 kilometers.

What went wrong?

- The radar that tracks incoming missiles.
- The software used to calculate target position incorrectly due to a bug in the code.
- The radar was never tested or reviewed.
- The radar's Aegis system failed to intercept the missile. What went wrong?
It is because there is a tracking problem. And when there is a tracking problem, 0.7000 for the location of the missile will be inaccurate.

and exams on the Internet which is often of rather poor quality and may even contain serious errors The book expands and details many issues that are described in the new 2023 version of the syllabus in a perfunctory or general way only According to the ISTQB guidelines for syllabus based training an exercise must be provided for each learning objective at the K3 level and a practical example must be provided for each objective at the K2 or K3 level In order to satisfy these requirements the authors prepared numerous exercises and examples for all learning objectives at these levels In addition for each learning objective one or more sample exam questions are presented which are similar to those that the candidate will see in the exam This makes the book an excellent aid for studying and preparing for the exam and verifying acquired knowledge ISTQB:
