Abstract—The purpose of this study was to determine the effect of a 10-week training program on the heart rate (HR) and heart rate reserve (HRR) of sedentary, middle-aged men. The subjects were randomly assigned to either a control group (CON) or a training group (TRN). The TRN group performed a 10-week training program consisting of three sessions per week of aerobic exercise. The CON group did not exercise. The HR and HRR were measured at rest and during maximal exercise at the beginning and end of the 10-week period. The TRN group showed a significant decrease in HR at rest and during maximal exercise, and a significant increase in HRR at rest and during maximal exercise. The CON group showed no significant changes in HR or HRR. The results of this study suggest that a 10-week training program can improve the cardiovascular fitness of sedentary, middle-aged men.

If you are, either a Type 1 or 2, follow the instructions carefully, both together and apart. If the bottom edge remains off the 100-degree mark, and/or the bottom edge is not straight, adjust the bottom edge, and be sure the edge is even. Do.
