1. Create a character who has the ability to control time. What challenges do they face, and how do they use their power for good or for mischief?
2. Imagine a world where humans live underwater. Describe the daily life, culture, and challenges of this underwater society.
3. Write a conversation between two unlikely friends—a dragon and a mouse—discussing their favorite hobbies and dreams.
4. Choose an ordinary object, like a key or a mirror, and write a story about its secret life when no one is watching.
5. Alternate Reality: What if gravity worked in reverse? Explore the implications of a world where everything falls upwards instead of downwards.

Current Index to Journals in Education ,2001    Rethinking the Education of Deaf Students Sue Livingston,1997 Here is a compelling and controversial text which asserts that Deaf students should be treated no differently than non Deaf students The author a veteran and practicing teacher rejects the predominant view of Deaf students as special learners in need of language remediation and repair Instead she maintains that for Deaf students as well as their hearing counterparts the primary educational goal is the making and sharing of understandings in various subjects Furthermore she views this as a process that occurs naturally concomitantly and reciprocally with the acquisition of language regardless of one's hearing ability Livingston's assertion clashes with conventional Deaf education which presumes that the wider learning begins after students master a sign system that codifies and reconstructs English With a cumbersome orderly piecemeal and unnatural approach this traditional view frequently forces teachers to water down curriculums in an attempt to make English more readily acquired As a result Deaf students are deprived of rich and challenging content Rethinking the Education of Deaf Students offers an alternative and demonstrates how American Sign Language ASL and English can coexist in the same classroom embedded in the content of what is being taught Through clear theoretical explanations field tested teaching strategies authentic examples of students work lesson plans and sections on assessment Livingston suggests ways to help students become educated language users Her ideas hold enormous implications for those who teach Deaf students develop school budgets design programs and train future teachers More important they may hold the key that unlocks the potential of Deaf students of all ages to become voracious readers and accomplished writers    British Education Index ,2005
