Shame and Guilt Gerhart Piers, Milton B. Singer, 2015-01-02 2015 Reprint of Original 1953 Edition Exact facsimile of the original edition not reproduced with Optical Recognition Software A psychoanalyst and an anthropologist collaborate in this now famous formulation Guilt and shame are feelings resulting from certain childhood experiences Although the terms appear to have similar meanings and are often used interchangeably each of the two feelings influences different patterns of behavior and probably contributes to different character types This book whose influence and renown have steadily grown since its first publication is a psychoanalytic and cultural study of shame and guilt It comprises two essays on the subject In Part I Dr Gerhart Piers a psychoanalyst gives concise definitions of these two previously inadequately defined terms and clearly distinguishes between them He discusses the experiences that can cause guilt or shame in an individual why some persons develop into guilt ridden individuals and others become shame driven and the special and sharply different therapeutic considerations that must be given to the person afflicted with guilt or shame In Part II Dr Milton Singer an anthropologist applies Dr Piers analysis of guilt and shame within the individual to his own study of cultures The title of the second essay by Singer is Shame Cultures and Guilt Cultures

Boys' Secrets and Men's Loves: David A.J. Richards, 2019-06-04 Boys Secrets and Men's Loves is the memoir of a law professor who has written over twenty books on the basic rights of American constitutionalism He has been a prominent advocate of gay rights and feminism which joins men and women in resistance A gay man born into an Italian American family in New Jersey he relates in this book his own experience on how the initiation of boys into patriarchy inflicts trauma leading them to mindlessly accept patriarchal codes of masculinity and how through art philosophy and experience including mutual love he and others straight and gay men come to join women in resisting patriarchy through the discovery of how deeply it harms men as well as women

Genes on the Couch Paul Gilbert, Kent G.

Bailey,2014-07-10 Philosophers and therapists have long theorised about how psychological mechanisms for love jealousy anxiety depression and many other human characteristics may have evolved over millions of years In the dawn of the new insights on evolution provided by Darwin s theories of natural selection Freud Jung and Klein sought to identify and understand human motives emotions and information processing as functions deeply rooted in our evolved history Despite this promising start and major developments in modern evolutionary psychology anthropology and sociobiology the last fifty years has seen little in the way of therapies derived from an evolutionary understanding of human psychology The contributors to this timely book illuminate how an evolution focused approach to psychopathology can offer new insights for different schools of therapy and provide a rationale for therapeutic integration Genes on the Couch brings together respected clinicians who have integrated evolutionary insights into their case conceptualisations and therapeutic interventions Various psychotherapy schools are represented and each author provides illustrative examples of the interventions used Specific topics addressed include the nature of evolved mental mechanisms regulation dysregulation of internal processes attachment and kinship in therapy the importance of internalising warmth as a therapeutic goal kin selection and incest avoidance cooperation and deception in social relations difficulties in working with certain male clients gender differences in therapy and the roles of shame and guilt in treatment Providing up to date summaries of recent thinking in this increasing important but diverse area Genes on the Couch will be of interest to psychotherapists psychiatrists and a wide range of mental health professionals

The Publishers Weekly ,1953 Dostoevsky Studies ,2000 Shame and Guilt: a Psychonalytic and a Cultural Study Gerhart Piers,Milton B. Singer,1953 Outside the Arch Catharine Rising,1999-05-13 Outside the Arch reverses the convention of measuring literature against psychoanalysis by using the work of five modern writers to suggest modifications to Heinz Kohut s self psychology if it is to become the paradigm to replace Freudianism Catharine Rising applies the positions taken by Conrad Forster Lawrence Joyce and Woolf to point out Kohut s failure to provide an origin for the superego his arguable faith in empathy as panacea his stress on human dependency instead of autonomy his demand for sympathetic self objects to form and maintain the self and his norm of a cohesive conscious self which undercuts the basis of human creativity She proposes modifications some of which have been discussed by followers of Kohut but points out that no theory or paradigm solves all problems though it may clarify some In this case self psychology provides a workable theory that undoes Freud's affronts that accounted for his own discoveries and those of Copernicus and Darwin Rising argues that the theory of self psychology becomes much more pervasive when the works of the five writers assess the effects of the radical discoveries that proposed that man was not the center of the universe that man was descended from apes and that man lacks control over his own mind as Copernicus Darwin and Freud proposed     Gazing on Secret Sights Theresa M.
